Amtrak Popularity Grows

State Senator Jim Mills, who has had a hand in bringing back more popularity to any single-seated vehicle since the horse, recently turned his great energy from the bicycle to the train.

Choosing the Santa Fe station as his platform, he avowed more and better service on the California run of Amtrak. If Mills has his way, there'll be two more trains making the Los Angeles-San Diego run daily.

He was able to make that proposal in light of the growing number of passengers riding the train—one of whom was Congressman Van Deelen on a recent trip home.

Both had nice things to say about Amtrak—and some criticism. But who could seriously criticize a transport network that was bankrupt a few years ago and which is now improving schedules, adding equipment and approaching a profit-making level?

Of course Amtrak got a boost from the energy pinch, but there is every indication that its passenger growth will continue. Auto travel expenses are no longer the poor man's travel mode. High motel rates, soaring fuel and restaurant tabs and unconscionably expensive repair bills may soon leave highways to the rich, the salesperson, trucks and buses.

The three-year old quasi-government railroad agency started at the low point on the totem pole. Train and buses carried 2 percent of all this nation's passengers in 1971. Planes carried 11 percent and autos carried 87 percent.

During the first two years of existence, Amtrak's passenger total increased by 8 percent. In 1973 the increase was about 24 percent and in the last quarter of the year it was up nearly 30 percent.

Popularity continued into 1974 with an increase of a half-million passengers reported in March over the previous month. It was the fifth straight month of increase since the fuel shortage started.

Amtrak carried 1.7 million people in March—45 percent more than the same month a year ago. 4.6 million passengers rode Amtrak the first three months of 1974—a 41 percent increase.

Amtrak is still heavily subsidized by the Federal government but the demand for aid is decreasing. Amtrak grossed $162 million in 1972 and $202 million last year, an increase of about 25 percent. Amtrak uses 30,000 miles of track but has 10 times that amount of track in place. Expansion, when it comes will not be as costly as if rights-of-way were needed. The agency could be self-sustaining in two or three years if all goes well.

The government deserves a pat on the back for its unaccustomed foresight that led to the creation of Amtrak in time to help cushion the effects of the energy crunch.

Travelers should consider making riding the trains a habit to help conserve scarce energy resources.

Political Hazard

Last week the 2,000-strong Gulls Hockey Boosters announced that its group would mass-picket the Arena because Peter Graham, Arena master-lease holder had brought in a World Hockey team, apparently leaving the Gulls out in the cold.

To get the background on the City's control on the Arena—which is built on City-owned property—we called Larry Thomas, press secretary of San Diego's remarkably able mayor—Mayor Pete Wilson.

"Larry," we said, "did you know they're picketing the Arena Saturday (May 25) and they're planning to hang Pete in effigy?"

Without a moment's pause, he nervously asked "which one?"

And while Gull fans and sports reporters were waiting about the reportedly high-handed method Graham used to bring the Joe Schwartz WHL team to the Arena after which Graham ordered the Gulls to vacate their Arena offices, Neil Morgan, the nationally famous columnist on the S.D. Evening Tribune, was quietly investigating a tip.

He reported it in his daily column May 8 "That Joe Schwartz who figures in Vincent Teresa's book, 'My Life in the Mafia', is the same Jersey City operator who proposes to move his World Hockey Assn. team to San Diego."

Community Complex Renamed Charles C. Dail Concourse

The Community Concourse grouping of public buildings is now the "Charles C. Dail (Community Concourse). Concourse"—named after Former Councilman Allen the former mayor of the City Hitch, who suggested the name change was master of ceremonies.

He is the brother of John B. Dail, a Lemon Grove insurance man, who lives on Olive st.

In a ceremony last week in the Concourse Plaza, adjacent to the entrance to the City Administration building, Mrs. Charles Dail, widow of the former mayor, accepted a framed copy of the resolution by which the name change occurred. The presentation was made by present Mayor Pete Wilson.

The Resolution, dated Oct. 30, 1973 ordered the complex which includes the City Administration building, the Convention and Performing Arts Center, the Municipal Parking garage and the City Operations building to be renamed the "Charles C. Dail Concourse."

The Resolution credited Mayor Dail for the concept, planning and construction of the magnificent downtown 5 p.m. on Sunday, June 2.

L.G. Fire District Faces Record Budget

Directors of the Lemon Grove Fire District took a look at the 1974-75 preliminary budget Monday night—and it looked expensive.

They were looking at a budget that may top a half-million dollars for the first time ever.

And they were seeing a tax rate that might increase 17 1/2 per cent—maybe more.

The present operating budget is $346,499. The present tax rate is .798 for each $100 of assessed valuation. A "study budget" showed a need for $403,175 with a possible mandated $71,000 yet to be included. The maximum allowable tax rate, without resorting to a special election, is .834. It is possible that the maximum might be reached this year if all demands are met, according to William Wardwell, chairman of the board.

Among the items is a wage increase for all 17 men now employed plus the cost of hiring two men more. The men are asking that all ranks be brought "up to the average" of similar ranks in Heartland non-city areas. In a memo, the board had shown a 10 per cent increase would be considered.

Mandated Costs

The $71,000 item is a federally mandated order that would reduce firemen's work hours from 70.2 a week to 56. Hiring additional men to fill shifts without an overtime bill would cost about $71,000 when the mandate becomes effective at the beginning of the year, Chief Fred Dixon told the board.

Dixon was critical of the executive order by which work hours are being limited. "It's a Senate Bill signed by the President of the U.S. and we've got to do it," he said. "I'm as opposed to it as you," he told the board.

In presenting the budget Dixon said "Every fireman in California is paid too much money—but so are plumbers and electricians. Call it inflation if you wish, but everything is."

In addition to the estimated $71,000 cost for the Senate Mandate (S-2747), are salaries of two more men listed at $12,975.98.

Dixon complained that "the tax rate has always been in relation to insurance ratings but compulsory acts (S-2747) are shooting us out of the saddle."

Engineer Ed Hayman made a wage presentation that would be slightly more than the 10 per cent being considered by the board. He asked that all ranks be brought to the average of other area districts. Increases by his formula, which he said had been approved by all the employees, would be 11.5 per cent.

Instead of a blanket increase, raises would range from $81 a month for probationary men to $369 for the chief.

Increases Listed

The chief would get $1926 a month, a 21.3 per cent raise and probationers would receive $920 or zero per cent.

In other ranks the captain would get $1,445, up $110; engineers—$1,292, up $178; 1st class—$1,172, up $152; 2nd—$1,090, up $131 and 3rd—$1,017, up $118.

Hayman claimed Lemon Grove personnel to be the "lowest paid in the Heartland District." He noted that other districts provide paid vacations, clothing allowances and education incentive pay. In these categories Lemon Grove firemen get none, he pointed out.

The board will meet again May 28 to discuss regular business—the meeting being a day later than normal due to Memorial Day. The budget will get the group's attention again on June 10.

At Monday's meeting were Wardwell, James Dorman, Dr. Robert Burns, and V. J. Dorman, District counsel.

LG School Board Gets Proposed Budget, No Tax Rate Increase Predicted

Uncertainty about income and questions concerning cost-of-living increases, accompanied the presentation of the 1974-75 Preliminary Budget to the Lemon Grove School District Board of Trustees at their Tuesday night meeting.

The preliminary budget is for the Board's review. Final approval will be in July.

The budget as it stands, has a proposed reserve, of $275,000. The required reserve according to Dr. Robert Sutton, superintendent of schools, can go as low as $210,000.

An extra $55,000 in reserve is a safety factor in case the District's declining enrollment continues or accelerates, reducing the amount of funds per child (ADA) allocated by the government.

James I. Justeson, assistant superintendent said that the tax rate will not increase for 1974-75.

The budget allows for a $100,000 cost-of-living increases which is 3 1/2 per cent more than 1973-74. The teachers had requested, at an earlier meeting, an 11.25 per cent increase.

The Board voted at Tuesday night's session, to review its position on employee salaries and instruct its representative on its view, in executive session at the next meeting, May 28.

In other Board action, Dan Heiserman, a fifth grade teacher at Mount Vernon School was approved to be half-time assistant vice principal at Vista La Mesa School.

The Board also agreed to invite Dr. Robert Andreen from the Grossmont Union High School District Board to speak at the next Board of Trustees meeting to explain the tax situation in his District.

Delinquent Tax Notices Mailed

Some 25,904 delinquent notices are being mailed to county property owners who have not paid their property taxes, according to County Tax Collector James E. Jones.

Jones said $15,168,579 remains unpaid. The amount represents 4.2 per cent of the total tax levy.

A delinquent penalty of six per cent plus a $3 fee has been added to these unpaid taxes. The tax payment plus penalty and fee must be made prior to June 28, or the property will be sold to the State for unpaid taxes.

At that time, redemption penalties of one per cent a month will be added to the total amount due until the property has been redeemed or is sold at public sale.

Jones said that fiscal year 1973-74 has been one of the most significant for the tax collector's office. Payments have been processed and deposited to earn interest faster than ever before.

At the same time, Jones said, personnel and operating costs of the office are running well below last year.

Long-term veterans assemble, prepare and box for shipment some 15,000,000 poppies throughout the nation. Every day is Poppy Day for these veterans.

Proceeds from this program provide funds for veterans' rehabilitation programs; care for widows and orphans at the VFW National Home, Eaton Rapids, Michigan; as well as care for the needy families of deceased veterans throughout the United States.

The slogan for this drive for our country's veterans, is "Honor The Dead By Helping The Living!" The symbolic beauty of the poppy was first commemorated in John McCrae's poem . . . "In Flanders fields the poppies grow between the crosses row on row . . ." published shortly after World War I.

The assembly program of these poppies is used most successfully in an adaptation program for psychiatric patients as well as all rehabilitation projects for the veterans.

Posts and auxiliaries throughout San Diego County maintain a relief fund for the care of local veterans, so that much of the proceeds return to our own community.

Letters to the Editor

Editor:

An article concerning a development company made the announcement that more than 75% of their homes had been sold in Rancho San Diego, near El Cajon. Sweetwater Village, the first residential community, is part of a planned community of approximately 6 thousand acres.

This is the site of our new, controversial, extravagant high school known as Valhalla.

It would appear that these developers forgot about the demand for schools and that the area residents are now furnished the money to build this very extravagant school.

When Valhalla is finished, I would like to suggest that gold plaques be placed at the front entrance.

One plaque for the courageous members of the Grossmont High School Board of Trustees, who last year fought off the vicious hordes of taxpayers, including many teachers, who begged them not to build Valhalla.

Another plaque should be given to the Grossmont School Administration, with Supt. Sellery's name engraved at the very top, since they so avidly favored the construction of Valhalla.

The third and most luxurious plaque should read, "built by the generous, hard-working taxpayers (suckers) of the Grossmont High School District. We sincerely hope that our sacrifices have made this community such a desirable place that thousands more will want to live here. May those of us who can't survive the taxes, rest in peace."

It seems a shame that outside interests should control the future of hockey in San Diego. Consider what will happen if Peter Graham is allowed to force the Gulls out of the Sports Arena in favor of the World Hockey Association.

(a) We'll lose the Gulls, the best minor-league franchise in hockey; (b) We'd lose all hope of an N.H.L. team for our area (that means never getting to see the real superstars of hockey, like Orr, Clarke, Esposito, etc.); (c) We'd get a last place team from a second-rate league and; (d) On the basis of the Knights' track-record, in a year or two they'd probably go bankrupt again and leave us with no hockey team at all, unless Mr. Breitbard still has a viable franchise and was willing to resume playing Peter Graham's games with the lease.

The San Diego Sports Arena was built with private money, but the bonds were guaranteed by the City of San Diego for the express purpose of obtaining major-league sports for our area. As residents of San Diego City and County, we have a right to say who we would prefer to play in our Arena.

All hockey fans are urged to contact their City Councilman or County Supervisor and let their feelings be known. Then, if our local government and the Sports Arena Management choose to ignore the wishes of the community, we can give them what they so richly deserve — an empty building.

Proposition W will be on our June ballot. It deals only with HOW the financial aspect of the Metropolitan Water District will be handled.

For more than 30 years, Southern California has enjoyed an unlimited supply of water from the Colorado River. The Supreme Court, however, has ruled that MWD must give up more than 50% of its present supply of Colorado River water. This means that we, here in Southern California, must bring our water down from the State water project at a cost approximating 400-million dollars.

A "YES" vote on Proposition W will permit revenue bond financing over the next 16 years. A NO vote will either bring about an increase in water rates or will require voters to approve a general obligation bond, secured by property taxes.

We must have the water — that goes almost without saying and cannot be argued. The only question is HOW do we pay for it.

I, therefore, recommend a YES vote on Proposition W.

Two of Judy Garland's early musicals will be shown by non-profit Hollywood Musicals Unlimited at the Unicorn Cinema in La Jolla on May 19 at 1 p.m.

One of the films is "Babes on Broadway" in which Miss Garland starred with Mickey Rooney in 1941. It was produced by Arthur Freed and directed by Busby Berkeley, the famous choreographer.

The second feature is "For Me and My Gal" in which she starred with Gene Kelly and George Murphy as a trio of vaudeville performers during WWI. It was also produced and directed by Freed and Berkeley.

This Week's RECIPE

This week's recipe is a delicious way to get both the protein and value from eggs, while serving something really "gourmet". For many cooks, however, the word soufflé causes uneasiness and visions of complicated culinary juggling.

There are only two things that must be mastered before making a soufflé with ease, according to the California Avocado Advisory Board home economists, folding and beating. Eggs for a soufflé should be beaten until the peaks just bend over when the beater is removed. If you keep this in mind your soufflé can't fail.

"Folding" is a word that sometimes baffles a novice cook. It is simply the gentlest form of stirring in the kitchen. Using your utensil, such as a rubber spatula, cut vertically through the mixture and slide it across the bottom of the mixing bowl.

California Avocado Soufflé

3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1 mashed avocado
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
3 eggs separated

Melt butter in saucepan over low heat, Blend in flour. Cook over low heat, stirring until mixture is smooth and bubbly. Remove from heat. Stir in milk. Heat just to boiling, cool. Add mashed avocado, salt, pepper and egg yolks. Blend well. Beat egg white until stiff, but not dry. Fold mashed avocado mixture into beaten egg whites. Carefully pour into buttered soufflé dish or 1½ quart casserole dish. Set in pan with one-inch hot water to surround dish. Bake at 325 degrees for 1 hour or until a knife inserted halfway in center comes clean. Serves four.

Don't Make a 'Mistake' Buying Beef by Bundle

The office of Attorney General Evelle J. Younger offered some advice for those who plan on buying a whole side or "bundle" of beef.

Younger's office suggests that the buyer check the ad carefully to see if it refers to "hanging weight". "Hanging weight" means the weight of the meat while hanging on the hook. When it is cut the buyer can find himself losing from 20-50 per cent of the weight.

If the ad lists the cuts you will receive, from filet mignon or porterhouse to stewing meat or a fancy name for stewing meat, check it carefully.

You may end up with half a pound of porterhouse and fifty pounds of stew meat.

It may be cow and not steer; it may be commercial grade or good grade, instead of the better quality prime or choice. Most often you will find you could have gotten a better price by going to your supermarket and buying the cuts you like.

Take a lesson from little chubby cheeks.

No, people don't stuff nuts in their cheeks, but lots of them do plan ahead for a "rainy day." That's what a savings and loan institution is all about. Now, we're not sure that the first savings account was a direct offshoot of our friend, the squirrel, but he sure does have the right idea. Gathering resources while they're available and storing them away for... just in case.

In case what? In case a lot of things. In case you decide on a well-earned vacation. Or a sleek sailing vessel you just can't pass up. Or fall in love with a cute little cottage for two. Or you just may have to pay an unexpected visit to your dentist. Nobody knows what your "in case" will be—that's why you have to be prepared.

And, why not build up your nest egg at La Jolla Federal? The highest interest rates allowed by law. The friendliest, most personal service in town. Years of accumulated financial experience. Four convenient locations. A rapidly growing concern. And all kinds of savings plans—one that's bound to be just perfect for you. In short, everything you expect from a savings and loan. And more.

Take a lesson from little chubby cheeks. He knows what he's doing.

Have faith in La Jolla Federal. We know what we're doing, too.

HOW TO BUILD A CAMPFIRE.

Everyone loves to sit around a warm campfire. But campfires can be dangerous if not properly built. So before you build your next campfire, here are a few simple facts to remember.

ARE CAMPFIRES ALLOWED?

There are some places in the United States where campfires cannot be built. And there are other spots where campfires are allowed only certain months of the year. So be sure to ask about local campfire laws when planning your trip.

SELECTING A SITE. Try to select an area with lots of shade. And make sure it's away from all bushes, needles, leaves and overhanging branches. So that sparks from your campfire have less chance of starting a forest fire.

PREPARING YOUR CAMPFIRE. The forest floor is covered with very flammable materials—things like bark, dry leaves and roots. So always clear a 10-foot area around your campfire. Then dig a hole the size of your campfire in the middle of the cleared area. And be sure you dig down until you reach thick, natural soil. This will prevent the fire from spreading along the dry topsoil and getting out of control.

STARTING A CAMPFIRE. Always have your safety tools ready before you light your campfire. Simple firefighting equipment includes a shovel, an ax, a big bucket of water, or a car-size fire extinguisher. After you've surrounded your campfire with rocks to hold in the flames, you're ready to add the fuel. Always use dry wood and cut it into short sticks. But never cut into a living tree.

PUTTING THE CAMPFIRE OUT. Always make sure your fire is dead out before you leave. Drown the campfire with lots of water, mix the ashes with plenty of dirt and then drown and stir again. And always check to make sure the rocks around your campfire are cool and not hiding hot embers.

And finally, if some of the wood in your fire isn't completely burned, be sure to scrape it down, wet it down and bury it in plenty of dirt. Please. Follow these simple rules the next time you build a campfire. You'll be sure to have a safe trip. And a forest to visit again next year.

Spouses Income Eases

Getting VA Loan, Now

The Los Angeles Veterans Administration Regional Office reminds married home-minded veterans that it is now easier to qualify for G.I. home loans.

Officials noted that the VA now gives full recognition to incomes and expenses of both veteran and spouse in determining ability to repay loan obligations.

They further stated that the VA is required by law to determine if contemplated terms of repayment bear a proper relation to the veteran's anticipated income and expenses before approving the loan.

While the VA has always considered the spouse's income, local rules sometimes had the effect of discounting the spouse's income. Now, however, no such local rules are imposed, and the spouse's income is given full consideration.

The Veterans Administration guarantees 60 percent of G.I. home loans (maximum $12,500) private lenders make to servicemen, veterans, and eligible spouses of World War II, Korean and post-Korean Conflicts and the Vietnam Era.

East County Folk Backing Prop. 9

The Common Cause citizens' campaign for Proposition 9, the Political Reform Act, on the June 4 ballot has begun in the East County. Announcement was made by Mrs. Norma Insley of Lakeside, campaign manager that over 30 people are working actively in the East County for the passage of Prop 9 on June 4.

Prop. 9 prohibits campaign contributions from lobbyists; puts a ceiling on spending for state-wide elections and balloting measure campaigns; prevents all state and local officials from voting on matters in which they have a personal financial interest; requires full disclosure of contributions of $50 or more to state and local campaigns.

Also working in the campaign are: Thomas J. Stratton of El Cajon, co-chairman and publicity chairman; Elaine Hall of El Cajon, endorsement chairman; Mrs. Spence Hindman, La Mesa, Brad Sturges, La Mesa, Ben Mendenhall, El Cajon, and Donna Cirino, La Mesa, are Telethon Chairpersons for various areas.

Information, literature and speakers for Proposition 9 are available by calling Tom Stratton (445-5874 or Norma Insley (443-4615).

YOU AND YOUR PET

by: Raymond A. Minor,
D.V.M.

"He's a bad dog, stay away from him."

Although people often refer to "good dogs" and "bad dogs", a dog's temperament is not just a matter of good and bad. It is the result of many factors, some of which can be predicted.

It is known that there are certain inbred characteristics affecting a dog's temperament. It is also known that a dog tends to inherit certain responses from its parents.

The Chow Chow, for example, is generally a one man dog. It is reserved, suspicious and indifferent to strangers. It has a will of its own and is not recommended to a home where children are present.

The Poodle, on the other hand, is usually a perfect family pet, especially if children are around. This breed of dog is affectionate, even-tempered and very obedient.

One way to learn more about this complex subject is to discuss your dog's breeding with the veterinarian at the time of purchase. This will help you to gain an understanding of the dog's capabilities to socialize.

The average dog buyer is looking for a pet that can safely join his family and be a companion—especially for children. A nervous dog is not a good companion for children, under almost any circumstances.

A dog that is moody or has a vacillating temperament is potentially dangerous as it may not be able to take playful abuse without retaliating.

Temperament—and safety—are not governed by the size of the dog. A serious dog bite can be inflicted by a small Boston Terrier as well as a large Doberman. In fact, there are no breeds in which "bad apples" have not been encountered.

In determining temperament, there are several unfavorable signs you should look out for during the dog's initial period away from mother and littermates: overly nervous reactions to the new situation; indifference to new home and unfriendly to people; erratic responses—acting one way at one time and another way another time—in similar situations.

Illness, accident or psychic trauma may also affect a dog's temperament. Even you, the new owner, may be a bad influence on what may have started out as a pleasant pet.

Clearly, unless you happen to be an expert, don't attempt to train your family dog to be an attack dog. Most dogs, even the gentlest, are protective when the need arises.

Don't permit your children to encourage aggressiveness with too much rough play. Sometimes this gets out of hand. Then a dog will bite out of excitement.

The relationship between family, dog and children is precious. It's worth taking any steps to ensure its success, and your veterinarian is available to help.

Dr. Minor regrets that he is unable to personally answer letters from pet owners. He suggests that readers consult their own veterinarians when their pets have problems.

Driving Violation Statistics Released

During the past twelve months California's 220 Driver Improvement Analysts (DIA's) sent warning notices to 220,000 motorists and held hearings for 103,500 drivers who were in trouble because of negligence, alcohol or drug use, or physical or mental problems.

They revoked 32,000 drivers' licenses, suspended 114,000, placed 25,000 drivers "on probation" and reinstated the licenses of 115,000 persons after they met legal or physical requirements.

"Although they aren't doctors or lawyers," DMV Director Robert Cozens said, "DIA's are specially trained in driving laws and medical opinion. On their decisions rest the rights of California's drivers to sit behind a steering wheel—and the safety of all motorists."

During the year ending March 31, the DIA's, with offices in 20 population centers, had to pass judgment on scores of categories of drivers, including the following:

- Drunk driving second convictions: 29,000 suspensions;
- Drug use or addiction: 1,500 revocations; 1,500 probations;
- Failure to appear in court after a traffic citation: 50,000 cases, of which 12,800 hardcore repeaters ended with DMV suspending their driving privileges until all violations were cleared;
- Hit-and-run cases: 1,500 suspensions and probations;
- Persons subject to fainting or blackouts: 3,000 licenses revoked, 3,100 put on probation under medical supervision;
- Negligent driver (excess violation points): 4,800 revocations, 8,000 suspensions, 16,400 probations;
- Physical disabilities: 1,400 revocations; 1,300 probations under medical supervision;
- Violation of various special license restrictions (such as wearing glasses, not driving at night, only using certain streets at certain times of day): 900 revocations, 60 suspensions, 36 probations.

—Lifetime revocation of drivers license after second drunk driving collision in three years causing bodily injury: 5.

Department of Motor Vehicles' actions are supplemental to actions that traffic courts may impose. Some are mandatory through the Vehicle Code; others are discretionary under powers given to DMV by the Code.

To Insure Smooth Sailing Prepare Before Casting-off

Nine million pleasure boats will fill the American waterways this summer. Before the recreational boater casts off he should do some careful checking to insure he won't become a Coast Guard "statistic". In 1973 the Coast Guard reported 696 boating accidents, 128 deaths and $1,788,400 property damage in California alone.

Proper preparation and planning can lower these statistics.

Each boat has three critical systems to check out: fuel, electricity and steering all must be in good working condition. Connections fastened, protective casings and other parts of each system should be expertly checked for conditions that could be hazardous during operation.

The Coast Guard Auxiliary, as part of its courtesy motorboat examination also checks the configuration and working order of navigation lights; sound producing devices; anchor and anchor line, and ventilation systems among others.

Flotation materials in the construction of boats that will keep them afloat in the event of swamping or capsizing is most important to passengers. Flotation cushions and vests are also essential in the event passengers are separated from a capsized boat. If a boat stays afloat after capsizing, stay with it!

Boats Have Limitations
Boaters should never overload a boat with people or objects. Every boat has a definite load capacity which can be learned from the manufacturer, retailer or local coast guard auxiliary. If a plaque attached to the craft does not indicate maximum speed or power output under optimum conditions, check with the manufacturer.

One of the most important ingredients of safe boating is the operator who uses his craft in waters and weather with which it can cope.

Since October 31, 1972, the coast guard has required that all recreational craft meet specific safety standards, and that each boat have a plaque attached certifying that these standards in effect at the date of construction have been met.

The auxiliary also offers a free home study program "The Skippers Course" which is available from the Superintendent of Documents for a nominal $1.50 (ask for catalogue No. 7D52:SK3) Superintendent of Documents, GPO Washington, D.C. 20402.

Bollman Reveals Taxes

Mike Bollman, candidate for State Assemblyman in the new 77th District, has made public his 1973 Federal and State income tax returns.

Bollman in releasing the returns to the press and the public stated, "At the time I announced my candidacy for Assemblyman, I promised to make a complete personal financial disclosure, including my income tax returns. I have now kept that promise and it is my intention to conduct the remainder of my campaign in the same manner."

Release of the returns is completely voluntary and neither State nor Federal law requires a candidate to do so.

The returns showed that Bollman paid $2,115 in Federal income taxes, and $276 in taxes to the States of California on a gross income of $21,648.

Anthrax Bacteria Found in Haiti Bongos

A state official recently warned that bongo drums and other products made from Haitian goatskin may cause anthrax, an acute bacterial disease that can be fatal.

Anyone who has purchased Haitian drums or other products made with untanned goat skins should double wrap them in plastic bags and call their local health department for advice on proper disposal.

Although anthrax is primarily found in animals such as sheep, cattle, goats and horses it can be contracted by humans. Since the contamination in goat skin drums was discovered, all products from Haiti made from goat skin have been banned.

Most cases of anthrax in this country are a result of contamination from products purchased by tourists and brought back to this country.

Marden Seeks Seat As U.S. Congressman

Wes Marden, a transportation program director for Rohr Industries, has opened campaign offices in Chula Vista in his race for Congressional seat in the 42nd District. He is a Republican.

Marden said he entered the race because he is "fed up with a do-nothing Congress."

Stanley McMains, a C.V. businessman, is serving as campaign committee chairman and Gene Tedick is campaign manager.

The office is at 256 1/2 Third Ave., Chula Vista.

Make D.M.V. Responsible For Small Craft Taxes

27,000 pleasure boats will be two percent of bluebook value assessed for taxing purposes. Large boats would be assessed "at value."

The Department of Motor Vehicles would also handle the annual registration of the small craft at the same time—relieving the Assessor's office from that task and relieving the boat owner from the duplicative and irritating responsibility of registration each January and taxation each July.

It would also relieve the boat owner of some money—but not very much. Williams estimates the revenue increase to be about $30,000—a little more than a dollar a boat—but the real savings would be in a reduction of workload in the Assessor's office permitting more time for valuing larger boats.

Williams said that a combination of the highly mobile character of small boats, the small revenue and the high cost of the Assessor's office to process the assessments, dictated the need for remedial legislation.

Hitt Still Leads Cajon Oval Racers Despite Motor Mishap

When they named it the Super Season for the super stock cars they were right. Some of the swiftest and most daring action has taken place in the first four programs at Cajon Speedway, producing four different main event winners and a host of track records. That sets the scene for bigger things this week.

This is probably why they'll be asking in the pits: Who will win the feature this Saturday night? And whose record will tumble out of the books?

Ron Overman, a handsome 31-year old driver of El Cajon became the fourth man in as many weeks to take the feature and by doing so, moved into second place in the battle for the El Cajon Stock Car Racing Assn. championship.

Jim Hitt, The Lemon Grove veteran who encountered mechanical problems last week, clings to the points lead and hopes to have his Mach 1 Mustang in running order this week. Hitt won the feature on the opening night. Russ Bullen, who captured the feature on the second show, said there is a chance he'll have the Gib-Lilly prepared 1972 Javelin on the line for the first time. Although Jim Jensen's 1963 Tempest will still be available to him.

Standings: Jim Hitt, L.G. 565 Ron Overman, E.C. 500 Mark Stahl, C.V. 491 Tim Biggers, E.C. 437 Bill Osborne, Pomona 425 Russ Bullen, Bonita 373 Gary Crossland, Lakeside 356

Bill Spencer, Pomona 315 L. Aufdengarten, S.D. 237 Pat McIntyre, S.V. 209

There are several solid candidates for the fifth program which starts with qualifications at 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

A four-car, 4-lap trophy dash opens the race card, followed by four 8-lap heats, a consolation, a 15-lap semi-main and the 30-lap feature.

As a special attraction, will be the lady drivers who will battle in a 10-lap Powder Puff derby.

Heading the list will be Joy Swentkofske of San Diego, who won the 10-lap feature in the record time of 3:17.36. This was faster than the consolation race.

She also set a one-lap qualifying mark of :19.11, not far from the men's semi-main event position.

Newcomer Diane Butler of La Mesa, however, was a close second and could displace Joy as the No. 1 gal driver.

Other prominent entries include Nancy Hagerman of El Cajon, Debbie Swiman of Santee and Mac Huntington, also of Santee. Miss Huntington owns and maintains her own car.

Doubleheader Set For Riverside Race Oval

RIVERSIDE — The Tuborg 400 and California 100 NAS-CAR stock car races at Riverside International Raceway will both be held on the same day next month, RIR president Les Richter announced.

The California 100, a late model sportsman event, is normally held on Saturday and the Tuborg 400 Grand National race on Sunday. This year, both events will run on Sunday, June 9.

Richter said the races were combined because of the energy crisis.

"We were asked earlier in the year to make cutbacks wherever possible," he said "and by combining the races this way, we were able to knock off a day of practice."

The Tuborg 400, now in its sixth year at Riverside, features such Grand National drivers as Richard Petty, Cale Yarborough, David Pearson, George Follmer and the Allison Brothers. It carries a purse of more than $80,000.

The California 100, established as a companion to the 400, is a 100-mile race for sportsman cars and features the top West Coast stock car drivers.

Practice and qualifying for the California 100 will be held on Sunday, June 2, and the race will start at 11 a.m. June 9.

Practice and qualifying for the 400 will be held Friday and Saturday, June 7-8, and the race will start at one o'clock in the afternoon.

Nettles, Mizuk Named April Stars

In two diverse fields, Graig Nettles, third baseman for the New York Yankees, and John Mizuk, veteran defenseman with the San Diego Gulls ice hockey team, have been named April's professional Stars of the Month by the Breitbard Athletic Foundation.

Nettles, a former San Diego High and S.D. State baseball star, captured the imagination of the sports world by hitting 11 homeruns for the Yankees during April and surpassing the old American League record of 10 set by Frank Robinson. His effort equalled the major league mark established by Willie Stargell. During his spree he drove in 23 runs.

Regarded one of the most reliable players in Gull history, Mizuk climaxed a 12-year career by accounting for eight goals and 47 assists. He added to his honors by being the only San Diegan selected to the Western Hockey League All-Star lineup by a vote of rival players and coaches. It was the second straight year he was singled out by his peers.

The Breitbard Foundation board passed up any amateur Star of the Month for April, but did vote certificates of achievement in behalf of Jack Renner, who won the San Diego junior golf title with sensational rounds of 64-69 for an 11-under-par total and Walter Redondo, National City youth who captured the 16-and-under singles tennis title at Ojai and both singles and doubles in the same division of the Central California junior championships.

TAKE FIVE

By John E. Wirges

There is not a man alive alert enough to dunk his pretzel in his beer that hasn't dreamed of someday becoming a hero. It's the All-American, true blue, Jack Armstrong, little boy in all of us.

All male children of all ages have, at one time or another, been John Wayne, Jackie Robinson, John Hadl, Nate Colbert, the Lone Ranger and/or Tonto. Every son of us has fought the good fight and won. In real life it's something else again.

When push gets down to shove in everyday living, with the raw face of reality looking over your shoulder, heroic deeds, principles, and speaking up over the roar of the crowd is largely left undone, unsung and unwon.

But not by all. Every once in a while a neighbor escapes our doldrums of the common herd and achieves a level of greatness. Some times they do it by deed, Sometimes by non-deed. And sometimes by facing up and doing absolutely nothing.

Such an act of courage was pulled off recently by Tom Jorgensen, once of Lemon Grove, now of El Cajon. Jorgensen, all 5-6, 140 pounds of him, learned electronics in the Navy during WWII and has been a radio engineer more than 30 years. He's been with KOGO since the carbon mike and cat's-hair days of crystal broadcasting. Jorgery was a disk jockey back in the days when the biggest hit of the swoon-set was "I Remember You Bill, When You Charged Up San Juan Hill."

Needless to say, Jorgery is no kid. He dresses in mod clothes and such to pass in modern times, but he remembers Mama from the time she was a girl.

And now he's on the road. Jorgery is the traveling engineer for the San Diego Padres broadcast crew. He shares to life and times of Jerry Coleman and Bob Chandler. He's the guy that turns them on.

Now, it came to pass in recent weeks, the Padres visited the home of the Philadelphias, one of the badder places found on the road.

'Tis said the only reason Philadelphia city fathers approved the building of a subway was to get crime off the streets. To say that people live in fear in Philadelphia is to say that the sun shines in California. It is almost absolute.

Tom Jorgensen missed the team bus and was left alone at the ball park after a night game a few weeks ago. He had to take the subway back to the hotel, three crime zones away.

Jorgery, armed only with his attache case, was alone in the subway car until the first stop, when a tall, husky Puerto Rican looking gentleman with a bad scar on his cheek and a mean look in his eye, entered and chose to sit directly opposite him in the otherwise empty car.

Jorgery remembers the hombre as being in his mid-20's, and moving with the grace of a fighter. He was dressed in dark clothes, blending well into the night, with sneakers on his feet for quiet stalking, leather gloves on his hands to protect his fists and a hat pulled low to hide his face.

One hand in particular, drew Jorgery's attention. The man opened his palm and showed a switch-blade knife. "It must have been a foot long," said Jorgensen, in recalling the happening.

What did Jorgery do? What would you do? I'd probably pray a bit, and sweat a lot and do what I was told. But not Tom Jorgensen. He's a man of action.

He picked up his attache case, unsnapped the locks with as loud a bang as he could, raised the lid while holding the case on his lap and slowly put his hand inside.

And then he glared back over a bristling mustache and played the biggest game of bluff in his life.

The PR dude with the knife didn't know Jorgery didn't have a gun. In truth, all he had in the case were a couple of mikes, a tape recorder, and the day's broadcast logs. The only thing he could do, in the event the guy got physical, was to tape record his demise.

But the dude didn't know that. With a half smile of respect, and a flip of the knife in salute, he bought the bluff and got off at the next stop.

Jorgery sat clutching a dead mike in relief all the way to his stop. He learned a lot about himself that night and those of us who call him friend learned something of value ourselves.

Never play poker with Tom Jorgensen.

David Love Is Easy Winner; Mayon Fights Bangkokian Friday

David Love, one of the few San Diego born-and-bred fighters, took another step up the ladder of fistic success last week when he unglued Mario Marquez in 10 lopsided rounds at Mickey Davies' Coliseum.

Both scrappers are middleweights with Love tipping the scale at 158½ and Marquez, of Ensenada, three pounds lighter.

Love, a smooth, fast puncher, seemed off-time in the first half, but he put it together to knock Marquez down in the sixth and ninth rounds. Marquez didn't want to get up in the ninth but the bell gave him time to consider the alternative. The judges viewed it unanimously ranging from 7-1 to 11-0. It was Love's third victory in a row on the come-back trail and sets his record at a very respectable 24-6.

Comeback was from three lacerations in a row he took in 1973 and early '74. But that is past now with some interesting developments in recent days. An important event came a few weeks ago when Angelo Dundee, the world famous manager, took Love under his wing. That made him stablemate of Muhammad Ali and interest in Love zoomed upward. So did Love's self-confidence which had taken a drubbing in this three-loss dark days.

Confidence Returns
Confidence restored, Love again dominated his opponents. He walked "Chu Cho" Garcia, taking 9 of 10 frames. Then he went to St. Louis to easily outpoint Don Cobb, the whiz there.

Then a young attorney named Bernard M. Levy, announced that he was putting together a syndicate in which Love would share. The syndicate would underwrite Love's training and living expenses as Love battled his way to the championship. Love said Friday night that he had not signed a contract yet. "I want to sleep on it for a while," he said.

The names of the members of the syndicate are to be revealed later this week, Levy said.

In the undercard at the Coliseum Friday, Eddie Logan, 120, a stablemate of Bobby Chacon, knocked out Francisco Rodriguez, 121, in 2:50 of the 5th round. Logan was knocked to the canvas in the second round but came back strong.

In a couple of prelims, Rudy Hernandez took a 6-round decision over Julio Lopez and Heavyweight Bart Boursse took a 5-round decision from Mel Marshall.

This Week
This week's card will have an international flavor. Lightweight Malaithong Sithkoom of Bangkok, Thailand will meet Miguel Mayon, San Diego, in a 10 round feature Friday night.

Sithkoom is ranked second on the Oriental lightweights chart. Mayon has fought Jimmy Hear and won a disputed draw against a 5 lightweights contender Ray Lunny in San Francisco's Cow Palace, and recently he bombed out Zaire's Cesar Sinda in the second round at the 15th and E street swat emporium.

In the supporting card are lightweights Randy Shields, an undefeated professional and former amateur star who meets the veteran Felix Jesso of San Ysidro. Last month Jasso won a split decision over Mose "King" Corbin at the Coliseum.

Two prelims will round out the bill.

Coliseum doors will open at 6:30 Friday for a series of films to be screened in the Ringside Room at 7 p.m.

This week's showing will be the lightweight showdown title fight between two-time champ Mando Ramos and Japan's Hiroshi Kobayashi.

Live action starts at 8:15 p.m.

Berkeley Alums Bring 'Pappy' Waldorf Here

Famed collegiate football figure Lynn "Pappy" Waldorf will be honored by Berkeley alumni and friends of U.C. tonight when the Cal Alumni Club of San Diego County meets aboard former San Francisco ferry, The Berkeley, in San Diego Bay.

Waldorf coached Cal football teams from 1947 to 1956 and led his players to three consecutive Rose Bowls. In 10 seasons, his Golden Bear squads were 66-32-4 and his total record as a coach is 174-100-22.

Before coming to Berkeley, Waldorf was named Coach of the Year in 1935 in his first year at Northwestern U. It was also during his Northwestern years that he acquired his nickname — Pappy. Reportedly, Waldorf, son of a Methodist bishop, reminded a line coach of his own grandpappy.

A member of football's Hall of Fame, Waldorf began his long association with the sport as a freshman at Syracuse University in 1921. He started coaching at Oklahoma City then went to Oklahoma A&M, Kansas State, Northwestern and finally California.

After leaving Berkeley, Waldorf coached for the San Francisco 49ers and retired in 1972 from fulltime work.

Many of his former players have gone on to top coaching jobs around the country.

All Berkeley alumni, sports fans and friends of the University are invited to the evening event which opens with no-host cocktails at 6 p.m. A buffet dinner will be served at 8 p.m. Dr. James Harder, professor of hydraulic engineering at Berkeley, will also speak on UFO's.

For reservations ($15 per couple) call Frank Griswold at 232-6491.

25 Records Set By Aztec Baseball Team

San Diego State's baseball team concluded its most successful season ever over the weekend, by taking two of three games from Long Beach State. Earlier in the week the Aztecs split a doubleheader with Los Angeles State.

The three wins ran the San Diego State overall record to a final 37-24 and 17-9 in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association. The 37 wins set a new Aztec record and the 17 conference wins were good enough for second place behind Los Angeles. The 1974 season was the most successful for the Aztecs since the 1965 team finished 27-14.

Aztec All-America candidate John Helfrick concluded his senior year by batting .401, and setting school records for most at bats (212), most hits (85), most total bases (155), most home runs (16), most RBI (70). Helfrick also broke seven conference records.

George McPherson set two Aztec records, scoring 55 times for one and stealing 37 bases for another. He was caught stealing just three times in 40 attempts. Billy Getz set a record with 45 walks and Steve Vickery set another record with 13 sacrifices.

As a team the Aztecs broke seven school records, including most wins (37), most at bats (1772), most hits (535), most total bases (748), most home runs (38), most sacrifices (75) and most walks (271).

San Diego State set four conference overall records and five conference play records. The most impressive is Helfrick's seven home runs in PCAA play.

In last week's action the Aztecs beat Los Angeles State 2-1 and lost 11-4, beat Long Beach State 4-3 and 6-2 and lost a 13 inning 11-10 game. Saturday's doubleheader with Long Beach took seven hours to play with the 13 inning game going 4½ hours.

At the weekly meeting of Sportscasters / Sportswriters Association Monday at 7 Seas Hyatt House, Helfrick explained that in spite of his .401 average he was lifted for a pinch hitter Saturday in the final game at Long Beach to preserve his above-400 average as much as anything else.

Padre president Buzzie Bava followed him on the program and was asked by a reporter if he had considered signing Helfrick.

"I'm more interested in that cents a pack, including tax in pinch-hitter", Buzzie answered.

Midget Auto Racing Returns to South Bay

Midget auto racing, once the number one spectator attraction in San Diego, returns Friday night at the South Bay Park Speedway in Chula Vista for an 8-event program on the ½ mile clay oval.

During the years 1946-47-48 midget racing drew crowds over 18,000 a night to the Balboa Stadium for weekly racing. Attendance dropped in early 1950's, but has been on the upswing the last five years at race tracks all over the nation.

This Friday night the newly formed midget division of the California Racing Assn., best known for their sprint car racing, makes its 1974 debut at the South Bay Park Speedway with more than 40 top cars and drivers on hand. Heading the large field will be 19-year old Chris Cumberworth of Santa Ana who drove his dad's SESCO-Chevy powered car to a win in the CRA inaugural at El Toro last week.

Out to stop him will be several top USAC midget points including Rick Goudy of Norwalk, one-lap midget-track record-holder at South Bay; Tony Simon of Upland; and Bobby Olivero of Lakewood, third in USAC points last year in his sensational Volkswagen powered car.

Gates open at 6 p.m. with time trials at 7 p.m. and the first race at 8 p.m. The fastest 20 cars will start the 30 lap main event. The track will be dark Saturday.

3-Day Meet is Set For Caliente

TIJUANA — Agua Caliente will expand its racing program to a three-day schedule over the Memorial Day weekend, it has been announced by Jack P. Meyers, director of racing at the new Tijuana facility.

"By offering an additional day to our regular weekend program, we not only can offer the racing fan an additional opportunity to enjoy a day at the races, but will enable the horsemen at Caliente to compete for more purse money," Meyers noted.

Caliente offers 12 races daily on Saturday and Sunday of each week and the Memorial day program will mean the border track will card 36 races in a three-day period or the equivalent of four racing days at most tracks.

Entries for the May 25-26-27 racing program will be taken on the preceding Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Meyers said. Post time will be at 12:30 p.m. for all three days of racing.

There are more than 900 horses on the grounds at Caliente. By Memorial Day weekend full capacity of 1050 should be in the barns.

Saturday at Caliente the feature race will be The Teate, an allowance for 4-year-olds and upward over a distance of six furlongs. Sunday's feature will be The Ensenada, an allowance for 4-year-olds and up going a distance of one mile and one-sixteenth.

Vapor Recovery Panel Meets Monday

The San Diego County Vapor Recovery Advisory Panel will meet Monday at 1:30 p.m. in Room 201 of the County Public Health Building, 1600 Pacific Highway.

Last week the County Board of Supervisors voted to add Rule 26 to the County's Air Pollution Control District Rules. The addition of Rule 26 permits installation of unapproved gasoline vapor recovery systems for testing purposes between now and November.

In December, the APCD Rules go into effect requiring installation and operation of APCD approved vapor recovery systems.

At its May 20 meeting, the advisory panel is scheduled to discuss and take final action on test procedures for the vapor recovery program.

A presentation will also be made of the county's testing program schedule.

Prop W is Best, Cheapest Water Director Says

Cost and availability of water are the concerns involved in Proposition W (for water) on the June 4 ballot.

Prop. W asks voters to authorize the Metropolitan Water District (MWD) to issue revenue bonds to provide long-term financing for construction and distribution of certain distribution lines and a treatment plant. MWD supplies water for Southern California and all of San Diego County.

"The need is here," said Harry Griffen, chairman of the board of Helix Water District, which supplies water to east county users. He is also a director of MWD and treasurer of the San Diego Water District.

MWD lost about half its entitlement of Colorado River water to the Central Arizona Project by a U. S. Supreme Court decision.

That will leave 55 million acre feet in short supply for MWD users. Northern California water is available to MWD but the means of getting it to the consumer in sufficient amounts to offset the Colorado River loss is the present problem.

Switching from one source of supply to another requires new transfer and feeder lines to be added to the present water complex.

"We'll need $150 million for the Inland Feeder and $400 million to construct the Middle Reach of the Foothills Feeder," he said.

An acute water shortage to Southern California citizens would be the result of failure to plan now for the coming conversion, Griffen said. Prop. W establishes a method of financing the projects. "Revenue Bonds," said Griffen, "would be the least expensive of three possibilities. That is the way financing is planned under Prop. W."

Prop. W will permit MWD to issue revenue bonds for whatever amount is needed for as long as the need exists, Griffen said. But public funds are not in jeopardy. Needed funds must come from the sale of the revenue bonds. If the bonds have an unrealistic base, they can't be sold. Bond buyers," he noted, "are extremely discerning and cautious. There is no market for excess bonds, he said.

"Another way to finance the project is to issue General Obligation bonds. That would become a tax on property at a time when MWD is reducing property taxes. In Helix District, for example, we have successfully eliminated water taxes on property. The people who use the water pay the bills," Griffen said.

The third way is a "pay-as-you-go" tax. Griffen said the latter is the most expensive.

"It would cost each user about $25 a year additionally and provide free rides for those who become users tomorrow," he said.

In 1966 Revenue bonds were voted to pay for various transmission lines in the MWD. These lines are already in place and are being used. But the U. S. Supreme Court's decision favoring Arizona's use of Colorado River Water warned Southern California that it must find an alternate source for about half of its present water supply.

If Prop. W fails, Griffen said, the facilities would be developed on an emergency basis. Financing it that way would be very expensive to the taxpayer. Under passage of W, there would be little if any increase in the cost of water to the user.

The Other Side

A Political Viewpoint

Media is being inundated by material from those who want support for Prop. 5 in California's June Primary.

Prop. 5 would allow any community with a transportation plan to use gas tax money for mass transit instead of tying those taxes solely to highway construction.

A point of view of one organization vehemently opposed to converting California's Highway Trust Fund money to mass transit systems is illustrated here.

... it would be an unmitigated disaster for all the people of California.

That warning was issued by William Applegate, Sacramento, president of the California Trucking Assn. He said that California's highways were absolutely essential to nearly all movement of goods and people in the state.

"The money in the Highway Fund comes from those who use the highways. They pay in proportion to the amount of that usage through fuel taxes, license fees, and in the case of commercial vehicle, weight fees," Applegate explained.

"To take that tax money and use it for non-highway purposes it to make a milch cow out of one class of taxpayer for the benefit of another. That, in itself is unfair."

But the worst effect of Proposition 5 would be to short-change highway maintenance and improvement at the very time when inflation is making it increasingly hard for California to provide safe roads for the state's ever-increasing traffic, Applegate said.

"The Interstate Highway System saves lives," he said, "It's as simple as that!"

"Nationally, the fatality rate per million vehicle miles on non-interstate highways was 4.89 persons. But on the Interstate System it was only 2.59!" he said. "A vote for Proposition 5 is a vote to increase highway deaths."

Aside from its role as movers of people, highways are also the prime medium for freight movement in California. Three out of five communities in this state have no other transport service at all except highway transportation, he said.

"We must not undermine our main mode of transportation of freight and people in order to experiment around with subway trains and other fixed right-of-way commuter transit systems in one or two urbanized areas of our state," said the president of CTA.

"Ultimately mass transit in this state depends on the highway system," Applegate said. "Every study ever made shows that the most flexible and economical mass transit made is a bus, and buses use the highways."

"So when you take money from highways to sink into the kind of bottomless pit that all fixed-rail urban transit systems turn out to be, you are not helping the people of California to get better public transportation; you are actually working against their best interests," he said.

Rapid Transit On Display At Mission Valley

A display of rapid transit vehicles of the present and future, including a new 21-passenger small bus to be used in downtown San Diego, will be held at Mission Valley Shopping Center this weekend.

The display will feature several models of advanced new transportation vehicles being built locally by Rohr Industries. They include the BART rail car, the experimental TANSBUS, the ROMAG electromagnetic research vehicle and the high-speed Aerotrain.

County Supervisor Dick Brown, who is also chairman of the State Board of Transportation, will officially open the display at noon, Friday.

The display is sponsored by the Committee for Yes on Proposition 5, the proposed constitutional amendment on the June 4 primary ballot.

The new 21-passenger bus, built by Mercedes Benz, is scheduled to begin service in the city of San Diego in late summer.

Also featured as part of the display will be a model of the new SLRV streetcar being built by Boeing Vertol for the cities of San Francisco and Boston.

Extra Judge Eyed For E.C. Courts

Assemblyman Bob Wilson (D-La Mesa) introduced legislation designed to relieve some of the congestion being experienced by the El Cajon Municipal Court.

The Wilson bill increases from four to five the number of Municipal Court judges of the El Cajon Judicial District of San Diego County.

In introducing his bill Wilson said, "El Cajon and the outlying areas served by the El Cajon Municipal Court have been growing by leaps and bounds during the past several years. There has not been an increase in the number of judges sitting on the El Cajon Municipal Court Bench for more than three years and in that time the population has greatly increased. As a matter of fact, the El Cajon Municipal court serves the entire East County, a community of more than 300,000."

Wilson concluded by saying, "One of the most important rights guaranteed us by the United States Constitution is the right to a fair and speedy trial. The El Cajon Municipal Court needs an additional judge if it is to adequately handle its tremendous case load."

The bill now goes to the Assembly Judiciary Committee where Wilson is hopeful for passage.

La Mesa Rotary To Hear SD CoC John Borchers

You'll hear it from the man who ought to know.

That San Diego is not a "crisis city" as intimated in Wall Street Journal and other periodicals.

That will be the thrust of the speech to be delivered Wednesday by John F. Borchers, general manager of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce Wednesday at the weekly meeting of the La Mesa Rotary club at noon.

The club meets at the La Mesa Youth Center in McArthur Park.

Borchers will tell why the economy of San Diego will remain strong and grow stronger in spite of setbacks that have plagued the city in the last few years.

How much better off is San Diego than other cities? Borchers will give his prognosis—and that estimate should be very promising.

"It should be a welcome relief to hear an optimistic viewpoint," said Al Marshall, the Rotary Club's publicity chairman. "John Borchers is recognized throughout the country for his perceptive opinions regarding the economy."

The Wednesday meeting is open to all Rotarians and their guests.
